

Communication and Collaboration Tools and Guidelines

Chat

Most course communication and collaboration will take place in the designated Slack (<https://slack.com/>) chat room.

Instructional Materials

All class documents and instructional materials are available online in a public GitHub (<https://github.com/>) repository.

At any given time, documents in the repository may be at different stages of ideation and completion. The words `todo` and `TBA` signify intention of updating a document.

If you see a typo, or would like to contribute to the materials, feel free to edit any of the documents (requires a GitHub account; ask an instructor how to "commit").

For convenience, some instructional materials, like the Syllabus, will be posted to Blackboard as well. These documents will be versioned, and may be out-of-date at some times.

Email

All members of the Learning Community have GWU-issued email addresses, which may be used for email communications. If emailing an instructor, include `BADM-2301` in the subject.

Assignment Submission

Most assignments will be submitted through Blackboard (<http://www.blackboard.com/>), mostly for privacy reasons.
